

A motorcycling trail riding crash in 2007 left me with permanent pain in my right shoulder akin to constant tooth ache. Previously similar injuries were successfully treated by a chiropractor or osteopath. But not this one. Multiple visits made no difference. An orthopaedic surgeon sent me for x-rays and scans. The problem could not be identified but it was real. An advertisement in a local newspaper sent me to Healthwise Energy Centre. My initial reaction was ultimate scepticism. It didn't last.

Don't ask me to explain Graham's treatment, I slept through most of it. But work it certainly does. His recommendation for some key supplements also keeps me pain free.
